To whom it may concern:

Kari Berit of Kari Berit Presents is a sure-win for your organization if you want a presenter who can connect with your audience, give them information that applies to their work and/or personal life situations, and has the energy to keep your audience engaged – and laughing.

Kari Berit got the tough “right after lunch” slot for presenting at our Region 7 Spring Workshop for Activity Professionals on April 16, 2010. She did a great job holding our attention with having us do activities on her handouts and sharing stories that would make us laugh and stories that would help us “get it.” She gave us very do-able ideas of how we could incorporate mental fitness exercises into both our programming and personal lives and helped us understand what we are dealing with in our own aging. In a second session titled “Caring for the Caregiver,” Kari adapted her material perfectly to our work with families and broadened our understanding of what they are going through in placing their loved ones under our care.

Kari’s energy and presentation were marked as “exceeding expectation” in our evaluations with comments of “Awesome!” and “I can understand the families of our residents so much better!”

For a sure fit with your organization, please consider Kari Berit’s energy and ability to help people laugh as she gives applicable content to both the personal and professional lives of your audience.

Sincerely,
